A MORRIS FAMILY

of Mecklenburg County, North Carolina

BY WHIT MORRIS

Like leaves on trees the race of man is found,
Now green in youth, now withering on the ground:
Another race the following spring supplies;
They fall successive and successive rise:
So generations in their course decay;
So flourish these when those are passed away.

PREFACE

Mrs. Auline McEntire (24-vi) brought me into this her project with a random letter January 5, 1953. She had already done much work on it in and about Decatur, Ala., her home and an early seat of our family. And she has since done all that she could under the handicap of her Mother's critical illness.

A little later Mr. John Otis Morris (16) volunteered his assistance and has proven to be a most zealous and understanding collaborator.

But I have had 50 years in land title work and 20 years in the preparation of a genealogy of the family of my Tunstall grandmother, published 1950. This experience has led me to assume, with the consent of Mrs. McEntire, the compilation of our manuscript and the supervision of the publication of our book—besides providing the funds required.

However, age 80 has crept up on me and it seems wise to print promptly what we happen to have. Our early family is satisfactorily accounted for but subsequent branches are in various stages of completion; others may take them up where we leave off.

Our typographic setup is well exemplified in Family 13. And its numerals are frequently written following a name to identify that person e.g., (13) (13-i) (13-i-1).

I shall be glad to serve as depositary for further information. Write me what you may know about any family or person and it will be available if and when someone asks about it.

HISTORICAL

The Moors occupied Spain some 700 years and gave their name (Moros, adj. morisco) to the Spanish fandango, which was introduced into England at a very early date as the morisco or morris dance. It was a spectacular, often mumming dance once commonly performed in England in pageants, processions and May-day games (Harper's Bazaar, Sept. 1931, good; Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, under morris, Moor, morisco; Encyc. Brit., 11th to 13th Ed., under morris-dance). Thus we began as dancers, but we became Puritans.

The Scotch-Irish were the Puritans of the South. In the early days of James I . . . 500,000 acres of fertile lands in Ulster were thrown open to Protestant colonization. Here begins the history of the Scotch-Irish as a distinctive people . . . . These settlers became more Irish than the Irishmen. Many were English but the larger element came from the Calvinists of Scotland . . . . The men who gave Ulster character were of the same class as those who made New England. It became one of the most flourishing portions of the British Empire . . . .

In 1698, upon demand of the English manufacturers, the woolen industry of Ireland was utterly destroyed. As one result 20,000 Protestants of Ulster left for America. In 1704 the Test Act was passed for Ireland and enforced most rigorously against the Protestants. They were forbidden to keep schools; marriages by their ministers were declared invalid; even the dead were denied burial in their churchyards. With its enforcement a new exodus to America began, which continued until the Toleration Act of 1782. After 1719 ships enough could not be found to carry from Ulster to America these men . . . . Among them were wealthy yeomen and the most intelligent of Irish manufacturers. When they came to America these Scotch-Irish were probably the best educated of the English-speaking race . . . . They were Presbyterians. They flowed westward and then south into western Virginia and western North Carolina. In South Carolina they met another current pouring in by way of Charleston.

In the field of education the debt of America to these immigrants can hardly be exaggerated . . . . It was in their schools that the fathers of the Revolution in the South received their education — not only in the classics but on the tyranny of England. . . . These Puritans came of a fighting stock. In the colonial wars and in the Revolution they contributed many famous names. But it is in the rank and file of the middle and Southern colonies that we find this indomitable race exerting its chief influence in the Revolutionary War. They were only too happy to pay off a portion of the debt which a century of broken faith had heaped up against their English oppressors. In the South it was almost entirely the Scotch-Irish who advocated entire separation from England. The Revolution was a Puritan movement. The Scotch-Irish hated England and all her institutions. Their religion had taught them the absolute equality of man. (The Puritan in Holland, England and America, by Douglas Campbell, pp. 471-502.)

Thus their descendants must insist that there was a Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence on May 20, 1775 (Encyc. Brit., 11th to 13th Ed., vol. 19, p. 777). The British Tarleton said, "It was evident that the Counties of Mecklenburg and Rowan were more hostile to England than any other in America." He complained that in this area, "No British commander could obtain information which would facilitate his designs." (The State, below.)

From Pennsylvania the Scotch-Irish crossed the narrow part of Maryland into Virginia, moving thence to North Carolina. By 1760 they were going into every valley in this region . . . . Mecklenburg County, N. C., was the center of a large Scotch-Irish population. (Bassett's Short History of the U.S., pp. 147, 180.)

From 1740 a stream of Scotch-Irish and Germans from Pennsylvania and Virginia poured southward . . . . These movements met and mingled in the region now occupied by Mecklenburg and adjacent counties. The actual settlement of Mecklenburg by permanent home-seekers began about 1748, and the county was created in 1762. (Tompkins' History of Mecklenburg County, Chap. iii, v, vi.)

In April 1953 Rowan County, N. C., was celebrating the bicentennial of its establishment in March 1753, with a great area then including Mecklenburg. The old plantation-east was between the coast and the Yadkin River, some 250 miles inland. Beyond lies the Piedmont plateau, then an unoccupied wilderness. In it Dobbs and McCulloh had a grant of 1,200,000 acres, subject to their locating 3,000 settlers by a certain date; and so they invited immigrants to come in and take up free homesteads. By 1750 the floodgates opened and the Scotch-Irish and Germans came in an eager stream. Freedom and free land tempted them. (The State, Apr. 11, 1953, a magazine pub. at Raleigh.)

OUR OWN SCOTCH-IRISH

Somewhere in the Scotch-Irish migration came our Morris and Maxwell ancestors, and the family of your compiler knew it well. About 1905 his father, John Calhoun Morris (44), gave him a memorandum yet extant that John Morris and Margaret Elizabeth Maxwell were married in Mecklenburg County, N.C.; Calvin Morris was their youngest child, went from North Carolina to Alabama very early in life, and came to Texas in 1853.

In 1907 he wrote, "The Maxwell blood is the best of all, good old Scotch stock; my father's mother was Margaret Maxwell, a most noble woman." And in 1932 his brother Humboldt wrote: "My grandfather Morris married a tourist from Scotland, just graduated from a higher seat of education. As you must know, her name was Maxwell. They were Presbyterians, she and her husband, very strict."

But their sister Sallie Morris Poole (46), born 1849 in Lawrence County, Ala., died 1916 at Waco, Texas, had longer and closer contact with her parents and better remembered what they had to say. She was similarly aided by her Uncle Thomas Bolivar Tunstall, born 1820 in Alabama, died 1917 at Crockett, Texas. And she had two keenly interested daughters (Mrs. Matthews and Mrs. Abbott) to jot down what was said and pass it on to us. Mrs. Poole said her father was the son of John Morris and wife, Margaret Elizabeth Maxwell. They were of the North Carolina Scotch Presbyterians who had migrated from Scotland to Ireland and came to Carolina from Ireland. Tradition is that the parents of Margaret Elizabeth came to America as bride and groom. They were of the strict religious, Sabbath-observing type, who would not even build a fire on Sunday to make coffee. By request of her mother, Mrs. Poole named a son James Thomas for James Maxwell, brother of Margaret Elizabeth, and for her Uncle Thomas Bolivar Tunstall.

Mrs. Poole also knew of six children of John Morris and Margaret Elizabeth, and handed them down to us; we have not found any other. They were given good Presbyterian names; consider John Calvin (1509-64), Swiss divine and reformer; John Milton (1608-74), English poet and theologian; Francis Makemie (d. 1708), from 1683 the foremost representative of Irish Presbyterianism in America, who as moderator organized at Philadelphia 1706 the first American Presbytery; and Nathaniel Taylor (d. 1710), prominent under Makemie in that organization; but we have not learned for whom Harvey was a namesake.

Mrs. Poole and her two brothers had not been associated for many years, and made their statements independent of each other. But they agree on the excellent education of Margaret Elizabeth Maxwell; she was typical of the Scotch-Irish described by Douglas Campbell, supra.

Probably the family of Margaret Elizabeth was rather prominent in its church. Mrs. George T. Crim (40-iii-2) is interested in hymns and spiritual songs and has done some research in them. She finds in the library of the Episcopal Diocese at Baltimore, Md., a very rare copy of a collection by one James Maxwell, originally published 1759 at Birmingham, England.

The U. S. census of 1790 has in the district which included Mecklenburg County two men named James Maxwell, each with his own household, evidently father and son. James Maxwell Jr. married Jean McClung in Mecklenburg County under bond 28 Mar. 1788 (Clemens, N. & S.C. Mar. Rec.) and his sister married 1792 — no doubt both still young. This confirms the statement that their parents came over as bride and groom.

James Maxwell Sr. had the fighting spirit of the Scotch-Irish and promptly approved the Revolution. He was a member of Capt. Charles Polk's Company of Light Horse, which entered 12 Mar. 1776 and served 65 days (C. L. Hunter's Sketches of Western North Carolina, p. 89; letter from Adjutant General, War Dept., Washington).

1. WILLIAM[1] MORRIS had a large family and very well could have arrived in Mecklenburg County by 1762. Probably he was our immigrant ancestor; certainly he was the father of John[2] Morris who married Margaret Elizabeth Maxwell. His sons Philemon and Zebulon suggest it; those very distinctive Bible names come on down in our family. The marriage bonds of his sons Philemon and William are found in the N.C. Department of Archives and History, at Raleigh, and both are signed by Isaac Alexander as witness; he was also witness to the bond of John and Margaret Elizabeth, which would seem to prove it.

The will of William Morris, dated Oct. 1803, was probated in Mecklenburg County at April Court 1804. The petition for its probate is signed by Elizabeth Morris, "widow," and by the sons and sons-in-law. It makes bequests to sons John and Philemon; to sons William and James "their portion of land"; to son Zebulon "the plantation whereon I now live, at the death of his mother"; and mentions daughters Catherine Stilwell and Elizabeth Young; Elijah Stillwell and William Young also sign the petition. Executors are sons John, Philemon and William; witness James Morris. The original is in the N.C. Department of Archives and History, Vol. 13, p. 28. There are land grants there to William Morris in Mecklenburg County 1778 and 1788, and 1765 in Anson County, which had included Mecklenburg; but we have not established him as our William.

Our original plan was to run out the descendants of John and Margaret Elizabeth Morris; the discovery of William[1] will not alter that plan. Our inquiry will be confined to them.

2. JOHN[2] MORRIS (William[1]) married Margaret Elizabeth Maxwell in Mecklenburg County, N. C., under bond 30 July 1792, with James Maxwell Jr. bondsman and Isaac Alexander witness (N. C. Dept. of Arch. & Hist., at Raleigh; Clemens, N. & S. C. Mar. Rec.) Under "Our Own Scotch-Irish" (Par. 2) grandson Humbolt Morris confused her with her mother.

Alabama Territory was created 1817 and the State admitted 1819. Our family was there very little later, son John Harvey by 1819. Probably it was the father who was administrator of the Estate of Robert Jackson Morris (not identified) in Morgan County, when on 2 Sept. 1825 certain household articles were sold to some 20 purchasers, including several of our own family (Record, p. 121).

Mrs. Poole thus named the six children: 1. Betty married Hugh McLean and had a good sized family; their eldest son married Anne Matthews. 2. Taylor married Susan McCroskey and had a large family. 3. Harvey married Catherine Hubbard, sister of Dave, member of Congress. 4. Milton married his first cousin Elizabeth Morris and had daughter Emeline. 5. Makemie died unmarried at about age 30. 6. Calvin married Ann Eliza Tunstall, the parents of Mrs. Poole.

We take them up in that order:

i. ELIZABETH (BETTY)[3] MORRIS (3).

ii. WILLIAM TAYLOR MORRIS (4).

iii. JOHN HARVEY MORRIS (38).

iv. PHILEMON MILTON MORRIS, b. 1800-10, m. in Morgan Co., Ala., 30 Apr. 1832 his first cousin Elizabeth Morris, and Mrs. Poole remembered that Milton had a daughter Emeline. His Philemon is found in Morgan Co. deeds: Book D, p. 133, 3 Jan. 1839; D-294, 9 Nov. 1839; D-541, 15 June 1841; and E-99, 10 Sept. 1842. The census of 1840 in Morgan Co. has P. M. Morris age 30-40, his wife age 20-30, a daughter 5-10 (Emeline), and two sons under 5.

In the N. C. Department of Archives and History, at Raleigh, is the bond 1 Apr. 1854 for the marriage of P. M. Morris and S. L. Alexander in Cabarrus Co., taken from Mecklenburg in 1792 — no doubt a son b. about 1835. It suggests that wife Elizabeth may have taken Philemon Milton back to her own family in North Carolina, and your compiler on 30 Nov. 1853 directed genealogist Wm. H. Bason to go there and examine the records of Mecklenburg and Cabarrus, at his usual charge. We had been in continuous correspondence, but 18 months later there was no response. And there this inquiry ended.

v. MAKEMIE MORRIS, d. unm. at about age 30.

vi. CALVIN MORRIS (42).

3. ELIZABETH (BETTY)[3] MORRIS (John,[2] William[1]), probably born 1793, married Hugh McLean in Mecklenburg County under bond 24 Apr. 1810 (Clemens, N. & S.C. Mar. Rec.) Mrs. Poole knew that their eldest son married Anne Matthews, but we do not have his name. Hugh McLean was a purchaser at the probate court sale in Morgan County 2 Sept. 1825 (Record, p. 121), and again at a similar sale 22 Jan. 1827 (p. 168). In Morgan County (Book C, p. 161) is a deed 13 Nov. 1834 from Hugh and Elizabeth McLean to Anderson McClung; and we recall that James Maxwell Jr. married Jean McClung 28 Mar. 1788.

The census of Walker County, Ala., for 1840 (p. 19) may be interpreted: Hugh McClain (mis-spelled by enumerator?) and wife, age 40-50 (b. 1790-1800) ; a son and two daughters age 15-20 (b. 1820-25) ; daughter age 10-15 (b. 1825-30) ; son and daughter age 5-10 (b. 1830-35). The eldest son may have had his own household by 1840, but the lack of any child born 1810-20 casts a doubt here. They were not in Walker County census for 1830 or 1850.

The census of Wilcox County, Ala., for the same 1840 (p. 24) may perhaps better have this family without the husband (had he died?) : Mrs. E. McLane, age 40-50 (b. 1790-1800) ; a son and 3 daughters age 20-30 (b. 1810-20) ; a son age 15-20 (b. 1820-25) ; two sons age 10-15 (b. 1825-30) ; a daughter age 5-10 (b. 1830-35).

A deed in Morgan County 3 Dec. 1902 (Book 79, p. 224) from the heirs of Dr. Ben F. Cross conveys his home in Decatur, and among them are A. D. McLean and wife Elizabeth. Dr. Cross had a daughter Lizzie, and A. D. was perhaps a descendant of our Hugh and Elizabeth. Something might be learned by following up this lead and Mrs. Auline McEntire (24-vi) was to make the inquiry, but the critical illness of her mother prevented.

4. WILLIAM TAYLOR[3] MORRIS (John,[2] William[1]), born 8 Oct. 1799, died 30 Nov. 1865, married Susan McCroskey, born 1 Mar. 1800, died 14 Aug. 1867 (Fairview Pres. Churchyard, in Cedar Cove, Ala.) Both were born in North Carolina and she was a daughter of Francis McCroskey. The census of Morgan County for 1850 has him a carpenter, with land $700; that for 1860, a mechanic with $1200 land and $400 personal property. He bought a "coverlet" sold in Morgan County 2 Sept. 1825 for the estate of Robert Jackson Morris, deceased. On 1 Nov. 1836 he and Neill Patterson (50) bought from the Government 40 acres, patented 1 Aug. 1839. A year later he alone bought 40 acres, and in 1856 80.30 acres. About 1835 he erected at Cedar Cove a substantial two-story home now in fair condition; it was owned by daughter Margaret Elizabeth at her death in 1879, and is now owned by Earl Cobb.

There was another William Taylor Morris, now deceased, who lived at Brooksville, Cullman County, Ala. He was a son of Ben Morris, who came from Georgia to Brooksville, and father of Starling Morris, Blountsville, Ala., Mrs. John Greer, Gadsden, Ala., Homer F. Morris, all now living, and several others.

Children of William Taylor and Susan Morris:

i. ANN[4] MORRIS, d. at age 18 and thought to have been the first burial in Fairview Pres. Churchyard.

ii. FRANCIS CALVIN MORRIS, b. 8 Apr. 1825 (5).

She d. very near 29 Aug. 1895, when her nephew James Francis, son of James Taylor Morris (8), m. Barbara Gibson. She was physically handicapped and after middle age m. — Slaton.

5. FRANCIS CALVIN[4] MORRIS (William Taylor,[3] John,[2] William[1]), born 8 Apr. 1825 in Morgan County, Ala., died 14 Apr. 1876 at Osceola, Ark. He graduated from Oglethorpe University and in 1849 entered Columbia Theological Seminary, Columbia, S.C., finishing in the class of 1852 (Semi-Centennial of Columbia Seminary, p. 427). He was a presbyterian minister at Tuscumbia, Ala., 1853-54; at Courtland, Ala., 1855-56; at Mountain Home, Ala., without charge 1857; and 1858-75 pastor of the first presbyterian church established in Osceola (Scott's Ministerial Directory, p. 516). And he married at Columbia 20 July 1852 Sarah Ann McFeat, born 13 Aug. 1829 at "Oak Grove," Iredell County, N.C. died 20 Sept. 1866 at Osceola, daughter of William McFeat and wife Elizabeth Plume. His second marriage — to a "sweet woman" — is only vaguely remembered.

Sarah Ann's diary records her marriage at 5 a.m., 20 July 1852, in Columbia; at 7 they departed for Atlanta, Ga., to visit a cousin. Two of her sisters were long associated with her family. One was Plumie, who married a Lansing and lived long at Atlanta, leaving sons John E., of Newark, N.J., and F. R., from Oct. 1887 a partner of Lyman Alexander Morris (below) in his store at Osceola. But the Columbia Theological Seminary, now at Decatur, Ga., finds no Lansing student there. The other sister married a Roane, who died very young leaving a grandson Spencer Roane living to 1950. The Seminary finds that William H. Roane graduated 1852, in the same class with Francis Calvin Morris.

William Beauregard Burris and wife Charlotte Orme had four daughters: 1. Lydia Ann Burris married in Morgan County 22 Aug. 1850 brother Zebulon N. Morris, and died soon after without issue. 2-3. He and his brother Zebulon N. were in a battle near Birmingham, at the close of the Civil War, when Phil's hat was shot off and Zeb lost the horse Pompey given him by his father. Later Zeb found the hat and in the night heard a horse which he recognized as Pompey, and Phil was riding it. They were camped at this place, afterwards known as Morris, Ala.; but probably it was named for Josiah Morris, born 1818 in Maryland, who established Birmingham. Another version is that Phil was captured, slipped out in the night and got another horse from his own company, rode back into the enemy camp, cut his pony loose and told it to follow him out.

After the war he went to White County and there married about 1869 Martha Elizabeth Hammons, sister of Jesse Boyd Hammons who married Margaret Mae, daughter of brother Charles Campbell Morris. A settlement near Searcy, Ark., was known as Hammonsville.

38. JOHN HARVEY[3] MORRIS (John,[2] William[1]), known as "Old Singing Harve" because he sang all the time, roamed a bit more than others of his family. Mrs. Bigbee (41-ii-6) has it from her father that he came from South Carolina to Morristown, Ala., and married Catherine Hubbard. It is a plausible tale if we consider that the only Morris (town) now known is in Jefferson County, and it identifies him there. Because the Alabama Department of Archives and History, at Montgomery, finds that at the very beginning of that county, in its volume for 1819-1879, one of the very first marriages was that of John H. Morris and Prudence McCarter, on 14 June 1819. They went from there to South Carolina and naturally he returned to Jefferson County; probably she died.

The minister was Thomas B. Tunstall, and we find him in the Tunstall genealogy (p. 52) published 1950 by your compiler, Whit Morris (44-i). He was an uncle of Ann Eliza Tunstall (p. 124), sister-in-law of John Harvey. Born 1788, he was for some years prior to 1825 a clerk in the Land Office at Huntsville and thereafter Clerk of the House of Representatives and Secretary of State to his death in 1842. We have not thought of him as a minister, but a man so capable may have acted informally in the inception of the new community, when no minister was available and a marriage was perforce done irregularly. Alabama Territory was created 1817 and the State was admitted to the Union 1819.

But John Harvey soon got back to his own family in Morgan County, Ala., and married there 12 Mar. 1828 Catherine Hubbard (Marriage Record), daughter of Major Thomas Hubbard, Revolutionary soldier, who died in that county 31 July 1841. She was a sister of David Hubbard and a sketch of him in Brewer's History of Alabama (p. 307) gives some light on her. The family was from Virginia but he was born in Tennessee about 1794; from about 1819 practiced law in Lawrence County, Ala., and was elected to Congress 1839 and 1849; brother Green K. Hubbard also lived there. And I remember that my father spoke of "Dave" Hubbard.

Mrs. Emma Cooper (40-iii-1) in 1954 organized the Major Thomas Hubbard Chapter of the D.A.R. at Jasper, and is its first Regent. She counts on the descendants of John Harvey and Catherine for its first members; says they are in Walker County by the hundred. This has led your compiler to drop this family with what data are here presented; he feels that at age 80 he should not undertake so much.

On 4 May 1870, at Springtown, Ark., son Lycurgus Alexander and wife Fannie Elizabeth wrote a joint letter to his parents with a number of religious exhortations by him. Both were dissatisfied; they were farming but could not make much; expected to be back in Walker County by fall. But he may first have accepted a call for teachers in the Cherokee Nation at $200 for five months. Her cough was as bad as ever; she had had it ever since she left Tennessee. They mention J. C., James, T. S., T. A. (?), Bettie, Time (?), sister Mary, sister Margaret, and Elmartha, Naomi and May (?), all apparently living with or near the parents; and she says her baby Charles has four teeth.

Mrs. Bigbee (41-ii-6) names children Milton, Jim, John, Naomi, Elmartha, Lycurgus Alexander, Mary and Jackson, in that order.

By patents 20 Sept. 1839 and 1 June 1858 John H. Morris was granted four parcels of 40 acres each which he had earlier purchased from the Government, and by deed 16 July 1851 he acquired from Robert Davis another 40 acres, all near together in Walker County, Ala. (Deed Rec., G-377, 398; 1-49 to 52). Probably his home was there from soon after 1828 to his death.

In the 1860 census the family was living in the Western Division of Walker County and was enumerated 21 June 1860 by James A. Jones, brother-in-law of Naomi Morris Jones (40):

127-123	John H. Morris,	age 56, farmer,	b. in N. C.
	Catherine Morris	55, domestic	Tenn.
	William M. Morris	31	Ala.
	Thompson S. Morris	20	Ala.
	James H. Morris	15	Ala.
	John A. Morris	19	Ala.
	James Morris	13	Ala.
	John C. Morris	10	Ala.
	Lycurgus A. Morris	8	Ala.

131-134	Green K. Morris, age	31,	b. in Ala.
	Martha Morris	20, domestic	Ala.
	David Morris	1	Ala.
	Chesley Cranford, age	27
	Elmartha M. Cranford	22

This census is relied on for ages because the enumerator was a member of the family and no doubt knew it well. Daughters are omitted because they had their own separate households. The seven remaining with the parents were presumably sons, but not necessarily; all in the household were enumerated, regardless of relationship.

So John Harvey Morris, farmer, born 1803-04 in North Carolina, married 12 March 1828 Catherine Hubbard, born 1804-05 in Tennessee. And on 22 Dec. 1860 they were members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church of Clearcreek Congregation.

He married 17 June 1874 Sallie Hunt Whitmore, born 6 July 1856 at Memphis, Tenn., died 22 Dec. 1940 at San Antonio, daughter of Charles Hamlin Whitmore and wife Lucy Ann Rives, of Memphis. They lived at Milford and Hillsboro, Texas, until 1889 and thereafter at Fort Worth, until she moved to San Antonio in 1915.

Her Rives ancestry — in Virginia — is found in Reliques of the Rives, by James Rives Childs, published 1929 by J. P. Bell Co., Lynchburg, Va. (4178, 2654, 2546, 2540, 5, 1; pp. 701, 483, 451, 429. 425, 73). But Mr. Childs was incorrectly informed as to his 2654 and with his approval your compiler in 1933-34 wholly rewrote it in a mimeographed supplement, "The Descendants of William Christopher Rives and Mary Rivers," distributed to many of the family and in 1954 to the Library of Congress and many of the most likely genealogical libraries; #310 is Sallie Hunt Whitmore.

My little Mother took medals at the Memphis Ladies Institute 1866-72, which I now have, and not so long after was studying shorthand unaided for the benefit of her boys; she taught it to us very early and very thoroughly:

i. WHITMORE (WHIT)[5] MORRIS, 702 Augusta St., San Antonio, Texas, b. 24 Apr. 1875 at Milford, m. 20 Oct. 1920 Mrs. Kathryn Goodwin, nee Brumfield; no children. His own genealogy is his hobby and fully occupies his time.

In 1901 he and another young man, Oscar Dietz, were sent to open a branch store at Oklahoma City; and in 1912 their patron, Mr. Collins, set the two of them up in their own Collins-Dietz-Morris Co. In 1955 it is quite the largest wholesale grocer in all of Oklahoma, and his widow still has his interest.

In 1907 he advanced to an important position with the Oliver at Chicago, and in 1910 became General Field Manager for the Royal at New York City. But in 1916 he resigned, acquired a valuable site in Brooklyn, and took a Ford agency, which he liquidated in 1922 as already stated. For many years he resided at Miami, Florida, playing contract bridge with the very best at that game.

48. LUCY EDNA[6] MATTHEWS (Anne Elizabeth,[5] Sallie Smith,[4] Calvin,[3] John,[2] William[1]), was born at Brownwood, Texas, 3 Aug. 1901; attended Texas Woman's College, Fort Worth, where she received her B. Mus. 1921 — under Carl Venth as to the violin — and B.A. 1923; taught 1924 in Nacogdoches (Texas) High School, 1925-27 in Clarendon High School; 1928 private violin classes; and has made excellent musicians of her own children, being one herself. Meanwhile and since she has done much volunteer work in the Methodist Church, with the Boy and Girl Scouts, Future Homemakers, 4-H Club, and other similar movements. In Cub Scouting she was the organizing Den-Mother for the Pack at Mesilla Park and served ten years; and in Chicago three months with Les rendered a similar service. She has been a Girl Scout twelve years, going in as a member of Betty's Brownie Troop Committee, serving as Day-Camp Director three years, as Commissioner for the Girl Scout Council in Las Cruces six years, and has just finished term as Vice-Commissioner in Deming. And her ambition for serious writing has been encouraged by publishers. But her real accomplishment is her fine family — plus (for your compiler) very active co-operation in this genealogical project.

She married 2 Sept. 1924 Garland Lester Boykin, born in Leon County, Texas, 25 June 1900, son of James Alexander Boykin and wife Lida Garland. He entered Texas A. & M. College on a scholarship, as valedictorian of his class at high school. Almost at once that campus became an army base for World War I and he, a freshman, became a private in the Army. Overseas orders for him were canceled with the Armistice, and he completed his education wholly by his own efforts, receiving 1922 a B.S. in animal husbandry. An older brother took him to Cuba as a sugar chemist for one season, and he returned to Armour Packing Company at Fort Worth. In the spring of 1924 he qualified for and accepted a position with the Jasper (Texas) schools as vocational agriculture teacher and athletic coach; summer sessions at Colorado A. & M. 1924-26 had given him advanced standing in agriculture and coaching. He was elected to teach vocational agriculture and coaching at Clarendon (Texas) High School 1924-27; was Secretary of Chamber of Commerce there 1928-30, and combined the two during the Depression years.

In the summer of 1929 he took the Great Plains Exhibit to the midwest fairs. In January 1935 Texas Extension Service offered him the Hansford County Agent position, and the family moved to Spearman, Texas. His efforts to help the plains farmers with their dust bowl problems were so successful that he was sent 1937 to a regional soil conservation meeting in Colorado Springs, where he met the Director of New Mexico Extension Service. Soon afterwards he was offered a position as Assistant County Agent Leader in New Mexico and moved his family to Mesilla Park, near New Mexico A. & M. Was Associate Director of New Mexico Extension Service 1946-52; resigned to accept FOA Point-4 appointment to Pakistan; but reconsidered to become Manager of Mimbres Valley Farmers Association of Luna County, at Deming, N.M., P. O. Box 31. It sells the crops of its members and purchases for them what they require, for a total of more than $1.5 million in 1954.

He is a veteran of both World Wars; had just been promoted to County Agent Leader when he was called into active service with the Air Force ten days after Pearl Harbor, at Lowry Field, Denver, and very shortly at Hickam Field, Honolulu. From there after 17 months, he was returned to Denver for a course on military law, and back to Hickam Field as Adjutant. His Pacific Theatre Ribbon bears a star for the battle of Midway. His next orders were for Chicago, where he studied German at Northwestern University, and went to the European Theatre. First to England, including the D-Day invasion (for which a star on his European Ribbon), and France, with service in Le Havre and months in Normandy, mainly at St. Brieuc, where he made many fast friends.

He returned to the U.S. in October 1945, ranks Major in the Air Force Reserve; and is a Past Commander of the American Legion at Clarendon 1930-34, a mason, Rotarian, and very active in his Methodist Church, serving many years on the official board, as Sunday School teacher and choir member.

50. NEILL[1] PATTERSON, born 1778, died 25 Aug. 1850, married Christina —, born 1783, died 7 July 1861 (Piney Grove Church Cemetery, south of Hartselle, Morgan Co., Ala.) There is a tradition that the Pattersons, Morrises, Eppersons and Gandys came to Alabama together; they ran a footrace to select a name for their settlement, and Gandy won; hence Gandy's Cove, Morgan Co., mentioned occasionally. On 1 Nov. 1836 Neill Patterson and William Taylor Morris (4) jointly bought 40 acres from the Government, and there are many other contacts between the two families; so that it is desirable to record sufficient concerning the Patterson family to explain relationships, but no more. Neill Patterson and wife apparently had at least two sons:

i. MALCOLM[2] PATTERSON was a witness to the will of Francis McCroskey (4) and in 1833 an appraiser of his estate. His home at Lacon, Ala., was just across the highway from Jacob Biffle Patterson. Thus we feel it is safe to surmise that he was a son of Neill Patterson. His own son, Malcolm Patterson Jr., merchant at Falkville, Ala., married first Roberta — and second Anna Gibson, sister of Barbara who married 1895 James Morris (12). But we find no other contact with this family.

ii. JACOB BIFFLE PATTERSON, b. 6 Jan. 1813, m. Clementine H. Stuart, b. 30 Oct. 1810, and they lived at Lacon. Grand-daughter Dona Leeman Bailey has their Bible and gives us its entries. Their children:
